Truro, NS – The Town of Truro, the County of Colchester, and the Colchester East Hants Public Library are pleased to invite you to the unveiling of the plans for the proposed new public library in downtown Truro.

This public presentation will be held on Thursday, April 3rd, 2014 at 7:00pm in Council Chambers, 3rd Floor of the Civic Building, 695 Prince Street. Project architects from MacKay-Lyons Sweetapple Architects will present their design for the new library.

“We have been working very hard with the library staff and several committees to arrive at a consensus,” says partner Talbot Sweetapple. “We have preserved the exterior of the Normal College building while introducing a functional, state of the art library within. By strong contrast, the new and modern addition is noticeably different paying homage to both the past and the future. We are very excited to present the design to the greater community.”

Mayor Mills is very excited about the presentation as well saying “I am really hoping all supporters of the library will come and see the final draft of the plans for the new library! I am confident that the public will appreciate what the Library Board approved plans will accomplish for residents of the service area of this exciting project, along with the preservation of a Provincial Heritage Property! Consider this your personal invitation to attend, and come see for yourself what your new library will look like!”
